Counsel for the appellant present.

According to the factual account given in the memorandum of appeal, it is an undeniable fact that the appellant is a pensioner having retired from service long ago. She is no more in active service requiring her to impugn the deduction of the amount from her pension by the respondents before the departmental authorities. However, pension being part of terms and conditions of the service gives right to the appellant to challenge the deduction made by the financial regulators, without appeal to the higher departmental authority. So, arguments of learned counsel for removal of objections is accepted. The appeal is entertainable without departmental appeal be put under due course for further proceedings
