Rs 6000/- per month, as stipulated in the Revised Basic Pay Scales, Allowances and Pension guidelines for Civil Employees (BPS 1-22) issued by the NWFP Government. Throughout his career, he persistently filed representations to his department, seeking rightful recognition and compliance with promotion protocols, yet his requests remained largely ignored until his retirement on January 11, 2023. The appellant has now approached this Tribunal through filing of instant appeal for redressal of his grievance.

2. The respondents were summoned, who contested the appeal by way of filing their respective written reply/comments.

The learned counsel for the appellant contended that the 3. appellant was unjustly denied the Additional Charge Allowance as stipulated in the Revised Basic Pay Scales, Allowances, and Pension of Civil Servants, despite fulfilling the necessary roles. He next contended that the appellant was eligible for the selection grade BPS-16 as of 1996 and should have been considered for a promotion to BPS-17 by 2006 as per established rules and procedures but his case was illegally and unlawfully not forward for consideration. The counsel stressed the principle of equality before the law, drawing attention to the fact that other employees had received similar promotions and allowances under comparable circumstances. He next argued that multiple representations made to the department concerning his promotion and allowance, indicating a pattern of disregard toward his legitimate requests. He further argued that the appellant requests retrospective proforma promotion to BPS-16 and BPS-17, along with back benefits, including payment of arrears, on the basis that he was eligible and qualified but wrongfully prevented from receiving. In the last, he argued that the appeal in hand may be accepted as prayed for.

On the other hand, the learned Assistant Advocate General for 4. the respondents opposed the contention of the learned counsel for the appellant and contended the appellant never applied for the Additional Charge Allowance during the period when performing additional duties and clarified that such an allowance is not applicable when the status and scale do not match. He next contended that the Selection Grade had been discontinued as of December 1, 2001, thereby nullifying the appellant's eligibility for this benefit during the time period in question. He further contended that the promotion policies state that notifications must be made immediately, yet the appellant failed to adhere to this regarding his personal upgrades. He next argued that there was no scheme of pick and choose regarding promotions. He further argued that there exist no proforma promotion policies under the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Government. In the last, he argued that the appeal in hand may be dismissed with costs.

assigned the additional responsibilities of Chief Draftsman within the same year and later received a formal promotion to Chief Draftsman (BPS-17) on 20.10.2010. The appellant asserts that he was eligible for selection grade in BPS-16 in 1996 and for a promotion to BPS-17 in 2006, however, these were allegedly denied to him without justification. The appellant was obligated to challenge any violations pertaining to his service terms and conditions within the stipulated time frame as defined in Section-4 of the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa Service Tribunal, 1974. Rather than adhering to the timeline, the appellant chose not to pursue a formal appeal when he first noticed an oversight but instead continued to engage with the department through multiple representations. The law dictates that the appellant should have submitted an appeal to the Tribunal upon filing his initial representation if it was not addressed within the statutory period of 90 days. Instead, the appellant engaged in prolonged correspondence with the department, which ultimately delayed his appeal. The appellant did not provide substantial documentary evidence to substantiate his claims regarding his alleged applications for selection grade BPS-16 in 1996 and promotion to BPS-17 in 2006. Additionally, there is a complete absence of documents such as, seniority lists demonstrating his position within the cadre, documentation of vacant posts that may have entitled him to consideration for promotion, any other relevant documentation that could establish his entitlements and claims. Without credible evidence demonstrating that the appellant was at the top of the seniority list or that there were vacant vacancies falling within his promotion quota during the claimed periods, his assertions regarding eligibility are unsubstantiated. Based on the presented facts and the lack of supporting documentation, we find that the appellant's claims regarding his entitlement for selection grade BPS-16 in 1996 and promotion to BPS-17 in 2006 are not sufficiently evidenced. Furthermore, the procedural failure to timely challenge these issues as mandated by law bars the appellant from succeeding in his appeal post-retirement.

7. Consequently, the appeal in hand stand dismissed. Parties are left to bear their own costs. File be consigned to the record room.

8. Pronounced in open Court at Peshawar and given under our hands and the seal of the Tribunal on this 24th day of September, 2024.
